

TOPIC OF THE MONTH
COLORS

Colors, they say, are a non-verbal form of communication

Colors, they say, are a non-verbal form of communication. This implies that it is a very basic form of interaction. Colors also give a strong edge of creative ability to whoever understands them.

With colors we were able to teach the children the basics of effective communication and creativity. It also served as a means of encouraging their ability to think outside the box and to solve problems through games.
